Full analysis

Overview

Third Wave is an established education and commerce platform focused on psychedelics and microdosing, presenting informational resources, courses, coaching, consultations, retreats, and related wellness services to prospective customers.

Scam/Impersonation Risk

No identity contradictions, impersonation indicators, phishing behavior, or malicious financial mechanics were observed. The homepage contained no login or sensitive-data form, while controlled interactions found no cloaking, hidden forms, clipboard manipulation, wallet activity, or suspicious scripts. This clean behavior converges with a long-established domain, sustained historical continuity, and clean external threat reputation; the evidence supports the conclusion that the site is legitimate rather than a deceptive imitation.

- The domain record shows registration through Namecheap in 2015, with an age of approximately 10.59 years.
- The domain's archive contains 451 snapshots spanning 2016–2026, representing 11 years of tracked history without detected repurposing.
- The homepage presents Third Wave consistently as a psychedelics and microdosing education and services platform.
- External reputation checks recorded 0 malicious and 0 suspicious detections, no search-browsing safety alert, and no reported abuse against the observed delivery infrastructure.

Regulatory Verification Notes

The supplied homepage evidence does not establish that Third Wave claims to be a licensed healthcare provider, regulated medical practice, or financial intermediary. Its commercial model centers on education, coaching, consultations, ecommerce, referrals, and psychedelic-wellness offerings; consequently, distinctions between general education, health guidance, and independently delivered professional services should remain clear in customer-facing terms. The available page material leaves the formal legal and regulatory disclosure position unclear, which is a limited transparency matter rather than evidence of fraud. Extensive analytics, advertising, behavioral measurement, and heatmap tracking also make the site's consent and privacy disclosures relevant to enterprise review.

- The homepage markets educational content, paid programs, coaching or consultation services, retreats, and related wellness resources without presenting a license number or licensing authority.

- The homepage's consent interface discloses necessary, preference, statistical, and marketing cookies, including calendar scheduling, analytics, advertising, and user-behavior technologies.
- The site's transport encryption uses a WE1-issued domain-validated TLS certificate, valid until 2026-10-07.
- The homepage supports commerce and customer engagement through WordPress/WooCommerce, Stripe, PayPal, Calendly, Typeform, and Intercom.

What to Verify Next

An institutional onboarding review should identify the contracting legal entity in the applicable terms, confirm which party provides each paid service, and determine whether any health-related service requires professional authorization in the customer's jurisdiction. Privacy reviewers should compare the consent interface with the full privacy and cookie terms, particularly for advertising, analytics, scheduling, and cross-site data sharing. Official contact and payment channels should be confirmed through independently sourced corporate records before material procurement or partnership commitments.

- The homepage's mixed education, coaching, consultation, referral, retreat, and ecommerce model creates multiple potential service-provider and contracting relationships.
- The observed page includes five external service destinations, including scheduling, supplement, retreat, video, and webinar providers.
- The homepage deploys seven analytics services, three advertising networks, and one tracking pixel.
- No sensitive form, externally submitted password form, or untrusted form destination was detected on the assessed homepage.

Summary Verdict

Third Wave is a legitimate, established, and trustworthy website with consistent identity, durable provenance, clean reputation, and stable observed behavior. No contradictory evidence undermines its stated purpose or supports a scam or impersonation assessment. Normal interaction, including account login and standard use, is appropriate.

Infrastructure Integrity

The website is served through Cloudflare's CDN/WAF, with all four observed addresses identified as edge nodes and no direct origin candidate exposed. This reduces direct infrastructure exposure and provides mainstream delivery protection, although it is a technical mitigation rather than independent proof of legitimacy.

- The site is served from AS13335 (Cloudflare, Inc., United States).
- Four Cloudflare edge addresses were observed; no origin-server candidate was identified.

Closing Assessment

Prospective users may engage with the site normally, while organizations considering material commercial relationships should complete routine legal-entity, service-provider, privacy, and jurisdictional due diligence.

About this assessment

A trust score summarises the evidence TrustSniffer could collect about thethirdwave.co at assessment time. It is a starting point for your own judgement, not a guarantee: a high score means the signals were consistent with a legitimately operated site, a low or critical score means several risk patterns were present.

TrustSniffer assesses a website from the evidence it can collect at a point in time: domain registration and age, hosting and certificate, the content the site served, and third-party reputation feeds. A score is a summary of that evidence, not a guarantee and not a legal finding. There is no human rating and no user review in it. A site can change after it is assessed.
